Do you take sunshine for granted? I don't In the 6+ years of solitary confinement now coined "Restrictive Housing" due to "legal push back", I've had zero sunlight. The 4+ years prior to that in General Population was much the same. "Short staffed" is often the excuse, but the staffing explanation isn't even necessary as, much to my disdain, people simply lay down and accept this! It's a push, a nudge, a testing of the fortifications. The elitists for time immemorial have patiently tested methods of control and subjugation. Like a slow boil to a toad in the pot these methods have reached the boiling point and the people simply take what's crammed down their throats. Those who don't take it laying down think they're in the action but fail to realize they've swallowed whole an indoctrination of propaganda and lies thus too becoming a tool for the very machine that oppresses and manipulates us all to its agenda. Systems which are created by the minds of elitist pigs can not be "reformed". They simply must cease to exist. Pursuit of "legal" actions is pro-system and anti-freedom. The legal action to end inhumane solitary in Texas was successful in changing the name of solitary to "Restrictive Housing". I see no change. I'm still here.
